A useful distinction in grammar is that of form and function. Grammatical form is concerned with the description of linguistic units in terms of what they are, and grammatical function is concerned with the description of what these linguistic units do. Note that we use capital letters at the beginning of function labels.

Traditionally, language instruction has focused on teaching grammar at the sentence level. Sentence-level grammar refers to parts of speech, tenses, phrases, clauses, and word order. However, current teaching approaches recognize that it is important to include grammar in context.

TEACHING GRAMMAR FOR COMMUNICATIVE COMPETENCE

When teaching, it's best to mix language functions with grammar. Provide functional language as students are ready to learn. In the example above, using "I wish I could go to the party" will likely confuse lower level students. On the other hand, "I'd like to go to the party" or "I want to go to the party" is appropriate for lower level classes.

To help students with the form, use a first conditional grammar chantto repeat the construction. Use a first conditional worksheet to ask students to practice the form. Create a first conditional chain by asking each student to repeat the result of what the previous student has said in the "if" clause. For example: If he comes, we will have lunch.

Teaching Conditional Forms to ESL Students

The Grammatical Functions of Subjects "The most complex grammatical function is that of subject. Consider the example in (1). (1) The tigers hunt prey at night. Tigers precedes the verb. It agrees with the verb in number, as becomes clear when it is made singular: The tiger hunts its prey at night.In the active construction, it is never marked by any preposition.

Grammatical Function Definition and Examples

There are two different overall methods for teaching grammar, called traditional and functional grammar. Traditional grammar focuses on explicitly teaching students about structuring sentences and the different parts of speech, whereas functional grammar has a strong focus on the context of a text (Winch et al., 2010).
