The narrative voice in Mercè Rodoreda's novel, The Time of the Doves, wraps the reader in the dizzying world of a young woman. Through first person narration and the use of stream of consciousness, Rodoreda places the reader inside the head of Natalia as life happens to her.

The Time of the Doves - Mercè Rodoreda. The Time of the Doves (1962) is deeply moving. The basic story is familiar. An impending conflict looms large. An ordinary shop assistant, Natalia, meets and falls in love with a man, Quimet. He is controlling and somewhat abusive, she fails to notice

Merce Rodoreda was one of Spain's great women writers. She was Gabriel García Márquez's favorite author. He learned Catalan just so he could read this novel in the original. It is an unforgettable book about a woman who was called Colometta --Little Dove by her first husband who didn't deserve the sacrifices she made for him.

In this section of The Time of the Doves, Rodoreda begins by describing the Majorcan-style chair that Quimet has made, and how Natalie must be sure to polish the chair every Sunday - the day that they were "going to make a child" on (49). Natalia was scared to tell Senyora Enriqueta that she and Quimet had a "wedding week" (49), and that she cried at first because she was scared
